We are pleased to announce that the 7th QS-MAPLE (Middle East and Africa Professional Leaders in Education) conference will convene from 2–4 May 2017 in Dubai, UAE. This prestigious conference attracts senior higher education academics and administrators from across the Middle East, Africa and the world.

The mission of QS-MAPLE is "to provide a forum that promotes the development of higher education in the Middle East and Africa in the global context that stimulates international partnership and to support the processes of institutional evaluation and upgrading that will lead to greater worldwide recognition of Middle Eastern and African universities."

QS-MAPLE offers the ideal platform for actively engaging university leaders, academics and senior administrators to contribute to the conference programme by sharing their experiences, providing case studies and taking part in constructive debate about the internationalisation of students, faculty and the curriculum.

As chair of the QS-MAPLE International Academic Conference Committee, I would like to invite you to submit your proposal for a session at the 2017 conference. The proposal should take the form of an abstract not exceeding 150 words and should be submitted with a 150-word personal profile online through the conference website (www.qsmaple.org) by 31 January 2017.

The 7th QS-MAPLE conference will be jointly co-hosted by the Higher Colleges of Technology and Amity University.
